DETAILED ACTION

Response to RCE and Amendment

1. Based upon the submitted claims, the examiner notes that the claimed selecting and processor configured to select are read as performing an algorithm to select the best copies of the received signal portions.
2. The 'combining 'and processor configured to combine are read as defined in the specification where the voltage waveform or signal power is added or averaged (as shown in fig. 13).
3. The plurality of 'energies' as claimed is read as defined by the specification (page 14), as the energy of the analog voltage waveform.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 50,60 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The claims 50 and 60 recite that the signal portions are bits, frames, symbols or chip. The specification does not disclose how a bit frame or chip would be combined (a bit is not a sinusoidal waveform). The combining disclosed by the specification only includes a waveform representation of a bit (spec page 14), which is a symbol. The combining of a frame or chip are not addressed at all. The examiner reads the claimed signal portion as a symbol.

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 41-49,51-59 are allowed over the prior art of record.
